Sometimes it happens in middle school, sometimes in high school. Feelings about the lesson are generally summed up in one word: gross. The frogs are slimy and greenish-grey, and they stink because they're pickled in formaldehyde. One Florida high school recently tried to eliminate the gross-out factor by using fake, yet highly realistic, frogs.

Many students will remember the frog dissection long after they have left school. However, it is understood that some students opt out for moral reasons, or some cannot complete the dissection due to health reasons. This project has three parts, to be completed by the student on their own time, using a computer and an internet connection.
